Summary

This report is developed by a number of human rights oriented civil society organizations, including Transparency International Anticorruption Center, Law Development and Protection Foundation, “Protection of Rights without Borders” NGO, Helsinki Citizens Assembly - Vanadzor, Helsinki Association, Human Rights Research Center and Non-Discrimination and Equality Coalition from Armenia and “De-occupation of Hadrut” NGO, Union of Artsakh Young Scientists and Specialists, “Vector” youth NGO and Civic Hub from Artsakh (Nagorno Karabagh).

The report provides a brief compilation of and references to data and analytical materials to describe situations characterized by xenophobia and discrimination towards Armenians in the Republic of Azerbaijan, which generate an existential threat to the indigenous Armenian people of Artsakh that currently struggle for self-determination to maintain their national identity.

The material covers matters related to racism, racial discrimination, intolerance, indigenous peoples rights, cultural rights, minority rights, ethnic cleansing, religion, freedom of expression, education, use of toxics, environment, health, mercenaries, disappearances, executions, terrorism, torture, inhuman treatment, corruption, international order, promotion of truth, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence.

The report provides the historical background of the Artsakh conflict (Nagorno-Karabagh conflict) begun in the beginning of 20th century under the Soviets’ ‘divide and rule’ policy.

It highlights the episodes of discrimination against Armenians addressed in international reports on Azerbaijan, including the UN and Council of Europe structures which however, have not been resolved over many years.

The document illustrates cases of dehumanization and demonization, which fuel the hatred within the society against the state of Armenia as well as the Armenian minority living in Azerbaijan.

It brings examples of the inculcation of hatred towards Armenians within the educational institutions of Azerbaijan, occurring from young ages, that influenced the views of the new generation of Azerbaijanis and shaped their intolerance towards their Armenian neighbours.

The material narrates examples to demonstrate the atmosphere of hatred within the Azerbaijani society, which glorifies the murder and terror against Armenians.

It also provides examples on how the anti-Armenian propaganda is being used and abused by Azerbaijan’s dictatorial regime as an instrument, on the one hand, to suppress the democratic developments in the country and, on the other hand, to isolate Artsakh from the world.

The report describes the trends of ethnic cleansing through the attempts to erase the traces of Armenian culture from the region through destroying and vandalizing the monuments or appropriating those under the name of Caucasian Albanian heritage.

The document provides a brief account on the criminal acts used during the 44-day war, that lasted from September 27 until November 9, 2020, carried out with support of Turkey, which holds the second largest military force within NATO.

The material describes the rhetoric used for many years to prepare the war with Armenia and how it, over time, subverted the negotiation process within the framework of the Minsk group. It also highlights the current vocabulary and actions expressing the whole xenophobia towards Armenians and the uncovered objective of ethnic cleansing.

The report explains Turkey's role in boosting the genocidal intents of the Azerbaijani government through techniques similar to those utilised by the Ottoman Empire on its own territory against Armenians and other Christian minorities.

In the end the document provides recommendations to the UN Special Rapporteurs with a call to take measures to prevent the ethnic cleansing of Artsakh people as well as to ensure their well-being and safety.

Historic background

During the 19-20th centuries there have been a number of ongoing and escalating ethnic and religious conflicts between Christians and Muslims in the South Caucasus. The particular origin of the conflict over Artsakh dates back to 1921, when Stalin - responsible for the nationalities policy of the Bolsheviks' government, pushed for annexation of the Armenian-populated Artsakh to Soviet Azerbaijan. In July 1923, the Nagorno-Karabakh Autonomous Oblast (NKAO) was created on the lands of Artsakh within the borders of Azerbaijan with some level of autonomy, while other Armenian regions (e.g. Shahumyan and Khanlar) were included in Azerbaijan without any special status. NKAO was divided from Soviet Armenia with a Kurd-populated strip, called Red Kurdistan Uyezd (district), which was later liquidated resulting in approximately 70% of local Kurds being expelled from the region. As a result, Artsakh appeared to be connected to Armenia through the narrow corridor of Lachin.

Still in 1989, Andrei Sakharov, a renowned Soviet dissident and Nobel Peace Prize winner spoke at the Congress of People's Deputies about the "divide and rule" policy of Soviets: "We have inherited from Stalinism a constitutional structure that bears the stamp of imperial thinking and the imperial policy of "divide and rule". The smaller Union Republics and the autonomous national subdivisions, which are administratively subordinated to the Union Republics, are victims of this legacy. For decades they have been subjected to national oppression. Now these problems have come to the surface in dramatic fashion. But to an equal extent the larger ethnic groups have also been victims, and that includes the Russian people, who have had to bear the main burden of imperial ambitions and the consequences of adventurism and dogmatism in foreign and domestic policy.”<sup>1</sup>

For about 70 years under the Azerbaijani rule, the Armenian people of Artsakh were subject to discrimination (e.g., obstacles to study the Armenian language, broadcast Armenian language programs, etc.), which significantly changed the demography of the Armenian-populated areas. E.g. according to the Soviet census of 1926, Armenians composed 89% of the 125,300 people in autonomous NKAO,<sup>2</sup> whereas in 1989 the number of Armenians was decreased to 77% of the population of 189,085.<sup>3</sup>

The Armenian population of NKAO had raised its voice several times before Kremlin leaders with a request to join the Armenian SSR to ensure guarantees for preserving their cultural identity, but to no success.

In light of some civic and political freedoms provided by Perestroika, on February 20 1988, Artsakh's regional legislature (Oblast Soviet) officially voted to become part of Armenia.

Peaceful assemblies, petitions and the decision of the NKAO Oblast Soviet were echoed with pogroms instigated by Azerbaijani authorities in Sumgait (February 27-29 1988) and later in Ganja (November 1988) and in Baku (January 1990). The growing ethnic tensions in both countries and unwillingness of Soviet authorities to solve the problem led to an armed conflict.

During his first visit to the US in late 1988, A.Sakharov announced that "Armenian people are again facing the threat of genocide."<sup>4</sup> In 1989, he stressed that "For Azerbaijan, the issue of Karabakh is a matter of ambition, for the Armenians of Karabakh it is a matter of life and death."<sup>5</sup> These quotes of the time of a renowned human rights defender truly describe the situation.

On December 10 1991, along with dissolution of the Soviet Union and before the formation of the independent Republic of Azerbaijan, the Artsakh people held a referendum of independence and established the Republic of Artsakh. At this period of time this process was in line with the Soviet Constitution, which at least nominally allowed for self-determination of nations.<sup>6</sup>

According to the last Soviet census of 1989, there were 390,505 Armenians living in Azerbaijan (total population - 7,021,178),<sup>7</sup> of which 245,055 - outside of NKAO,<sup>8</sup> and there were 84,860 Azerbaijanis living in Armenia (total population - 3,304,776).<sup>9</sup> The conflict between Armenia and Azerbaijan eventually resulted in the displacement of about 220,000 ethnic Armenians from Azerbaijan<sup>10</sup> and almost all ethnic Azeris from Armenia.<sup>11</sup>

During the war 1992-1994, Armenian forces gained control of Artsakh and the adjacent areas, before a ceasefire was declared in 1994. Later, the peace talks began under the auspices of the OSCE Minsk Group, which, though continued for more than two decades, were not able to provide a long-lasting solution to the conflict.

Azerbaijan, unwilling to negotiate meaningfully within the Minsk group format and to recognize the independence of Artsakh people, spent almost two decades heavily investing its oil budget into the military and accumulating arms - with the intention of taking over Artsakh by force. This was carried out in parallel with bribing Western officials for keeping silence over its ongoing human rights violations.<sup>12</sup> According to Andre Walker, a British political commentator, the Azerbaijani government has been bribing foreign politicians with anticipation of their support in the possible new war.<sup>13</sup>

In the last decade there were series of escalations on the borders of Artsakh and Armenia with Azerbaijan - reaching the peaks in early April 2016 in Artsakh and mid-July 2020 in the north of Armenia.

On September 27 of 2020, Azerbaijan launched a large-scale aggression against Artsakh under the catchphrase of 'restoring the historical justice.' The war was orchestrated with support from the Turkish military and deployment of mercenaries and jihadists from Syria.<sup>14</sup>

Azerbaijan/Turkey launched large scale attack along the entire length of the frontline of Artsakh - using heavy artillery, tanks, aircraft and missiles, including cluster munitions and unmanned air vehicles (UAVs) - targeting peaceful population and civilian infrastructures, schools and hospitals, places of worship and cultural monuments of Artsakh, dehumanized captives and mutilated bodies of fallen soldiers.

The war started in the midst of COVID-19 pandemic, in spite of the worldwide call of the UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres appealing to “...end the sickness of war and fight the disease that is ravaging our world”<sup>15</sup> and “...a special appeal to all countries with influence on parties waging war to do everything possible for the ceasefire to become a reality.”<sup>16</sup>

The war led to about 90,000 (60%) people of Artsakh to leave their homes,<sup>17</sup> of which about 35,000-40,000 have not returned after the war.<sup>18</sup> It further resulted in heavy casualties, including more than 3,500 Armenian soldiers<sup>19</sup> and 72 civilians - 41 of which were killed as a result of targeted strikes and 31 - in captivity.<sup>20</sup> About 9,000 were wounded that along with the peaking COVID-19 stretched the capacities of the health systems in Armenia and Artsakh. Several dozens still remain captives in Azerbaijani jails.

Following three failed attempts to stop the war with mediation from the Minsk group co-chairs, the military operations were stopped with an armistice brokered by Russia on November 9, 2020. The defeat of Armenian armed forces left almost half of the territory of NKAO under Azerbaijani control, including more than 120 villages<sup>21</sup> and 1,456 historical and cultural monuments.<sup>22</sup> Armenia/Artsakh also returned without fighting all seven (7) negotiated territories surrounding NKAO.

The history of existence of Artsakh and Armenian-populated areas as part of Azerbaijan during the Soviet rule, the Armenophobic acts of the government of the independent Republic of Azerbaijan towards the Armenians as well as the specific practices applied during and after the 44-day war demonstrate that the root cause of Artsakh/Nagorno-Karabagh conflict, as A.Sakharov mentioned in 1988-1989, rests with the xenophobia against Armenians and the genocidal intentions of Azerbaijan’s government. Its obvious aim is the forced displacement and ethnic cleansing of the Armenian population from Artsakh.

Some of the most notable evidences and proofs of Azerbaijan's fascist and xenophobic policies are discussed below.

Discrimination against Armenians as addressed in international reports

Different forms of racism and xenophobia against Armenians have been regularly documented in concluding observations of the UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination,<sup>23</sup> reports of the European Commission against Racism and Intolerance,<sup>24</sup> opinions of the Council of Europe Advisory Committee on the Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities,<sup>25</sup> concluding observations of the UN Human Rights Committee,<sup>26</sup> documents of Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), and reports of the US State Department.

Today there are approximately 20,000 Armenians reported to live in Azerbaijan, being almost exclusively - persons married to Azerbaijanis or of mixed Armenian-Azerbaijani descent,<sup>27</sup> yet, there is a significant amount of evidence that prove discrimination against these people.

The US Department of State Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for Azerbaijan<sup>28</sup> have, at least since 2011, stated that citizens of Azerbaijan of Armenian descent living in the country complain of discrimination in employment, housing, and the provision of social services. Citizens who were ethnic Armenians often concealed their ethnicity by legally changing the ethnic designation in their passports. While official government policy allows citizens of ethnic Armenian descent to travel, low-level officials reportedly often requested bribes or harassed ethnic Armenians who applied for passports.<sup>29</sup> Citizens of Armenian descent also reported discrimination in employment.<sup>30</sup> The Country Report on Human Rights Practices for Azerbaijan for 2019 states that individuals with Armenian-sounding names were often subjected to additional screening at border crossings and were occasionally denied entrance to the country.<sup>31</sup>

As recorded in the US State Department's Country Reports on Human Rights Practices 2019,<sup>32</sup> an entire generation of Azerbaijanis had grown up listening to hate speech against Armenians.

The Council of Europe Commission against Racism and Intolerance (ECRI) has repeatedly recognized the link between the harsh comments regularly made in Azerbaijan about the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict and the discrimination that Armenians coming under Azerbaijan's jurisdiction encounter in their daily lives.<sup>33</sup>

ECRI's first report on Azerbaijan from 2003 read that due to the conflict, there was a widespread negative sentiment towards Armenians in Azerbaijani society.<sup>34</sup> As a result, the Armenians living on the territory of Azerbaijan under the effective control of the Azerbaijani authorities tend to shield their ethnic identity or, in any event, avoid exposing it publicly. Armenians were reported to have experienced discrimination in different fields, including employment and the exercise of property rights. One of the main problems remained the seizure of their apartments by Azerbaijani refugees from Armenia, internally displaced persons or criminals. Armenians were also reported to have suffered from harassment at schools and at the workplace and to have been refused pensions or renewal of permits to live in Baku by local government authorities.<sup>35</sup>

In its second report on Azerbaijan from 2007, ECRI reported about discrimination towards Armenians particularly in access to public services. Discrimination sometimes amounts to harassment which prevents the persons concerned from exercising their basic rights such as the right to pension allowance or the right to work. Judicial proceedings opened by Armenians trying to secure their rights are said to systematically fail due to the general negative climate against Armenians. The Commission, among various forms of discrimination against Armenians highlighted the oral and written inflammatory speech on the conflict over Nagorno-Karabakh, which does not only target Armenia and Armenian citizens, but also portrays Armenians living in Azerbaijan as enemies and traitors.<sup>36</sup>

ECRI recorded that certain TV channels, some members of the general public, some politicians and even some authorities at local and national levels fuelled negative feelings among society towards Armenians in general, and ethnic Armenians living on Azerbaijani territory in particular. One of the consequences of discrimination and inflammatory speech against Armenians is that many Armenians keep a low profile in Azerbaijan, trying as much as possible to avoid drawing attention to themselves. They often seek to hide their ethnic identity through changing their names. The negative climate not only has an impact on Armenians living in Azerbaijan, but also affects Azerbaijani individuals or NGOs assisting Armenians when trying to exercise their basic rights. They are reportedly victims of anonymous threats, defamation campaigns in some media and harassment by some authorities.<sup>37</sup>

The ECRI Report on Azerbaijan of 2016 said that “political leaders, educational institutions and media have continued using hate speech against Armenians; an entire generation of Azerbaijanis has now grown-up listening to this hateful rhetoric. Human rights activists working inter alia towards reconciliation with Armenia have been sentenced to heavy prison terms on controversial accusations.”<sup>38</sup>

The Council of Europe Advisory Committee on the Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities has pointed out the incidents of “hostility and discrimination” against members of the Armenian minority and the existence of anti-Armenian sentiments in Azerbaijan expressing concern about the fact that an entire generation of Azerbaijanis has now been raised with a rhetoric of hate, hostility and victimhood, which may have an impact on prospects of future reconciliation.<sup>39</sup>

The UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD) in its concluding observations on the combined 7-9th periodic reports of Azerbaijan<sup>40</sup> also expressed concern at the repeated and unpunished use of inflammatory language by politicians speaking about the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict and at its adverse impact on the public’s view of ethnic Armenians in Azerbaijan. CERD stressed the limited effectiveness of existing consultative bodies to compensate for the underrepresentation of ethnic minorities in political bodies.

Azerbaijani authorities have not only persistently ignored their international obligations but at the highest level have fuelled extremist Armenophobia, inter alia, through promoting impunity of the perpetrators of racist crimes.

The Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) has mentioned that the anti-Armenian propaganda and hate dissemination carried out by Azerbaijan are a serious obstacle to the negotiation process. It stated that “the anti-Armenian propaganda extends to the following main direction:

- formation of the image of Armenians as enemy and aggressor, and self-assuring the right of Azerbaijan towards Armenian territories;
- *deliberate policy on distortion of the fact of the Armenian Genocide in the Ottoman Empire. To this end, the Azerbaijani authorities invented the idea to declare their own people as “victims of genocide”, and with this in mind President Heidar Aliyev signed in 1998 a Decree “On genocide of Azerbaijanis”. ## Dehumanization and demonization

Dehumanization and demonization of Armenians is an instrument of propaganda used by Azerbaijan used to shape public opinion and create deeply rooted damaging stereotypes about Armenians. Dehumanizing language has been consistently used by Azerbaijani high-ranking state officials, public personalities and opinion makers, including human rights activists - portraying Armenians as Azerbaijanis' greatest enemy, drawing parallels with animals or diseases.

Ilham Aliyev, the president of Azerbaijan, regularly made inflammatory remarks in his statements or interviews and posted sharp comments on Twitter about Armenia and Armenians,<sup>44</sup> which have been documented since at least 2007.

On November 20 2012, president Aliyev posted an excerpt of his public speech on his official Twitter account which reads: “Armenia is a country of no value. It is actually a colony, an outpost run from abroad... Evidence of this is the mass exodus of people from Armenia to other countries.”<sup>45</sup>

On May 17 2013, the chief of the political analysis and information provision department of the Azerbaijani Presidential Administration Elnur Aslanov stated at an international forum of research centres of the Organization of the Black Sea Economic Cooperation (BSEC) “Armenia is a grey spot on the map of the South Caucasus. It is “cancer” of the region through which the illegal traffic of arms and drugs go.”<sup>46</sup>

In a speech to his cabinet in April 2015, Aliyev was reported on his government’s official website as telling Armenians: “If you do not want to die, then get out of Azerbaijani lands. [...] We must and we do wage a more active struggle with Armenia. We have isolated it from all international and regional projects.”<sup>47</sup>

During his address to the nation on October 4 2020, Aliyev referring to Armenians, said: “They thought we were going to put up with the occupation? Now we are going to kick them out like dogs”.<sup>49</sup>

On October 17 2020, during his address to the nation Aliyev said “For 30 years, it was in the hands of wild beasts, in the hands of predators, in the hands of jackals.” He said “We will continue to expel these [Armenians] liars. They see who is who now. They see that we were teaching them a lesson they will never forget. ... They have neither conscience nor morality. They don’t even have the brain.”<sup>50</sup>

On December 10 2020, Aliyev at the victory parade in Baku delivered a speech, where he stated that “During the war, I said that our iron fist embodies both our unity and strength. That iron fist broke the enemy’s spine and crushed the enemy’s head. After that, if Armenian fascism ever raises its head again, the result will be the same. Again, Azerbaijan's iron fist will break their back." He also declared Armenian "Zangezur, Goycha [Sevan] and Iravan [Yerevan] districts" as Azerbaijani historical lands,<sup>51</sup> which implied an intent to return those lands.

On December 12 2020, during the meeting with OSCE Minsk Group's France and the US Co-Chairs, president Aliyev stated, inter alia, that "If Armenian fascism rises its head once again, we will smash it with an iron fist."<sup>52</sup>

According to the Armenian Ombudsman's observations, the statements of the President Aliyev became slogans inspiring atrocities against Armenians during the war. Those were also used by the servicemen of the Azerbaijani Armed Forces during the torture of the Armenian military and civilians, while beheading Armenians alive, mutilating the bodies of the victims and committing other atrocities.<sup>53</sup>

As mentioned above, Armenophobic expressions were frequently used by Azerbaijani public personalities and opinion makers.

On October 24 2020, Toghrul Mammadli, an official at the Council of State Support to NGOs under the auspices of the President of Azerbaijan, referring to an Armenian wedding held at Shushi's Holy Saviour Ghazanchetsots church amid the war, stated that "it was the last wedding of yours [Armenians] in occupied territories".<sup>54</sup>

On October 26, 2020, Mete Turksoy, an Azerbaijani political activist claimed that "Not a single civilian should be left alive in Nagorno-Karabakh."<sup>55</sup>

On October 28 2020, Nurlan Ibrahimov, the head of the press service of "Qarabag" football club of Azerbaijan, published a Facebook post, which, translated from Azerbaijani, stated "We must kill the Armenians. It does not matter whether a woman, a child, an old man. We must kill everyone we can and whoever happens. We should not feel sorry; we should not feel pity. If we do not kill (them), our children will be killed."<sup>56</sup> For this he was banned for life by UEFA considering it "racist behaviour."

On November 10, 2020, Sabir Mamedov, People's Artist of Azerbaijan stated that "Armenians are a tribe, self-destroying ethnos. And today, when we beat them again, they again scream to the whole world. Very miserable and ungrateful creatures who tramped our bread. ...Armenians are such a deceitful, cowardly, arrogant and hypocritical people that it is beyond words.”<sup>57</sup>

Hate speech against Armenians in Azerbaijan targeted even the children. For example, an open photo of an Armenian child is posted in Azerbaijani social networks and the following question asked: “Will you kill an Armenian child?”. Polls targeting children with violence and calls for violence have been widely spread in social networks.<sup>58</sup>

Armenophobic propaganda was fuelled only through mere ‘emotional’ statements and expressions of its officials and public personalities, but also state-run initiatives.

On October 22 2020, Azerbaijan announced production of new UAVs and named those “ItiQovan”, which in Azerbaijani means “dog chaser.”<sup>59</sup>

After the war, the Ministry of Transport, Communications and High Technologies of Azerbaijan released stamps depicting an Azerbaijani agent ‘disinfecting’ Karabakh from its Armenian population similar to eradicating the virus.<sup>60</sup>

Hate education

As recorded by the Advisory Committee on the Council of Europe Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities and US State Department, an entire generation of Azerbaijanis has been raised with a rhetoric of hate and hostility towards Armenians.<sup>61</sup>

Incitement to hatred and calls for violence against ethnic Armenians have been sparked by the statements of high-ranking officials of Azerbaijan,<sup>62</sup> but also those injected into the population from early childhood.

The latter is well proved by a video displaying an Azerbaijani kindergarten where children are asked a question “Who is our enemy?” and according to a taught lesson they shout together “Armenians”, “who have killed their soldiers”.<sup>63</sup> Another video posted by the Human Rights Ombudsman of the Republic of Artsakh shows the contrast of perceptions of enemies in Stepanakert pre-school, where the Armenian kids see a dragon or a spiderman as their enemies.<sup>64</sup>

History textbooks for 10th and 11th grade students, approved by the Ministry of Education of Azerbaijan in 2000, include discriminative and derogatory words used to address Armenians, describing them as main enemies of Azerbaijanis, using the wording “Armenian terrorist”, “Armenian fascist”, “Armenian bandit”, “Armenian separatist”, “Armenian barbarism” and adjectives such as “nasty Armenian” and “fascist Armenian.” Much of the course is devoted to describing Armenia and Armenians as main enemies of Azerbaijanis and as a continuous adversary for Azerbaijan for almost a century. It should be noted that history classes are compulsory in all schools of Azerbaijan and there are no alternative textbooks allowed.<sup>66</sup>

Promotion of murder and terror

Hate speech against Armenians has been voiced throughout many years by many official circles in Azerbaijan, hence it is not surprising that this boosted more hostility, murders and later war crimes against Armenians based on their ethnicity.

A very typical example of the promotion of extreme racism was the case of Ramil Safarov, an Azerbaijani officer who brutally murdered a sleeping Armenian officer - Gurgen Margaryan - with an axe during a NATO seminar in Budapest, Hungary in 2004.<sup>67</sup>

Following the murder, Elmira Suleymanova, the Ombudsman of Azerbaijan, stated that “R.Safarov must become an example of patriotism for the Azerbaijani youth” (source: “Zerkalo”, 28 February, 2004). Agshin Mehdiyev, Ambassador, Permanent Representative of Azerbaijan to the Council of Europe stated that he “does not advise Armenians to sleep safely until Karabakh conflict is settled. Incidents like in Budapest cannot be ruled out” (source: Zerkalo, 23 February, 2004). An Azerbaijani businessman Nadir Aliyev established a special fund for Safarov. Siyavush Novruzov, MP from the ruling “Yeni Azerbaijan” party said: “If the conflict is not solved in the near future, then the incidents similar to the one happened in Budapest may happen everywhere where there are Armenians and Azerbaijanis, including the Council of Europe” (source: “Zerkalo”, 27 February, 2004). Obviously, the murder of an Armenian officer was greeted with approval by extremist non-governmental organizations.<sup>68</sup> Zeynab Khanlarova, People's Artist of USSR, Milli Majlis deputy said “Ramil Safarov is not only the hero of Azerbaijan, but the hero of the whole world. Monuments should be erected in his honor. Not every man is able to do what he did. There are two heroes: one is Mister Ilham Aliyev and the other is Ramil Safarov. If I were in Ramil's place, I would do the same. He took an Armenian's life, and he was right to do so.”<sup>69</sup>

In 2012, Azerbaijan lodged a request for Safarov's transfer from Hungary, where the killer was sentenced and jailed. In the same year, Safarov was transferred to Azerbaijan where the government pardoned him, released, promoted him to major, gave him eight years of back pay, a new apartment and venerated him as a “hero.”<sup>70</sup>

The shocking reception of Safarov in his homeland resulted in a broad critique by the international community. The European Commission against Racism and Intolerance in its latest report on Azerbaijan voiced concerns on the facts of pardoning, releasing and promoting Ramil Safarov by the Azerbaijani authorities “without taking into account the risk of cultivating a sense of impunity for the perpetrators of racist crime.”<sup>71</sup>

UN CERD condemned this act stating that “by welcoming a citizen of the State party convicted of murdering an Armenian as a national hero and by pardoning and releasing that person upon transfer, the State party condones racial hatred and hate crimes and denies redress to victims.”<sup>72</sup>

The case of the brutal murder of an Armenian Army officer was appealed in the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), which in its judgment, dated 26, May 2020, found a violation of Article 14 (prohibition of discrimination) in conjunction with Article 2 (right to life) of the European Convention on Human Rights. The European Court of Human Rights indicated that Safarov “was treated as an innocent or wrongfully convicted person and bestowed with benefits that appear not to have had any legal basis under domestic law.” The acts of Azerbaijan “in effect granted R.S. impunity for the crimes committed against his Armenian victims.” Additionally, the Court found it “particularly disturbing” that the ethnically driven acts of the Azerbaijani officer receive official glorification by the State of Azerbaijan, and its high-ranking officials. It also deplored the fact that a large majority of statements made “by a number of Azerbaijani officials glorifying R.S., his deeds and his pardon” “expressed particular support for the fact that R.S.'s crimes had been directed against Armenian soldiers, congratulated him on his actions and called him a patriot, a role model and a hero.” Eventually, the Court concluded that the measures taken by the Azerbaijani authorities in respect of the Azerbaijani army officer were “racially motivated.”<sup>73</sup>

Another judgment of the European Court of Human Rights relates to a resident of an Armenian border village - 20-years-old Manvel Saribekyan, who was tortured and murdered in Azerbaijani captivity in 2010. The Court found that Saribekyan – who had been taken into custody in good health and died while under the exclusive control of the Azerbaijani authorities – died as a result of the violent actions of the personnel at the Military Police Department in Baku, where he was kept in captivity. Azerbaijan’s responsibility for his death was confirmed. Coming to the qualification of the ill-treatment described, the Court stated that it “was in no doubt that it involved very serious and cruel suffering and that it was carried out intentionally on a detained person under the exclusive control of the authorities.” “The Court has taken into account the general context of hostility and tension between Azerbaijan and Armenia and found that the investigation into the death of the applicants’ son had been inadequate in several respects, including its failure to consider whether ethnic hatred had been a contributing factor in his death and the torture to which he had been subjected.”<sup>74</sup>

Numerous cases were also brought before the ECtHR in the context of the 4-day war in April 2016, launched by Azerbaijan against Nagorno-Karabakh. The cases related to the killings of peaceful civilians,<sup>75</sup> mutilation of corpses of Armenian soldiers and the beheadings of servicemen of the Artsakh Defence Army.<sup>76</sup> Videos and pictures depicting the cruel treatment were widely circulated on social media sites and the perpetrators were glorified.

In one particular case, Armenian soldier Kyaram Sloyan was beheaded, and his head extensively demonstrated to the soldiers and to the Azerbaijani general public via social networks (in particular: VKontakte).<sup>77</sup> The Azerbaijani officer who decapitated K. Sloyan has become a national hero in Azerbaijan, after that country’s president, Ilham Aliyev awarded him a medal after he and his wife, Mehriban, toured the border regions.<sup>78</sup>

A later case pending before the ECtHR concerns peacetime killings of three Armenian soldiers in late 2016, which were again driven by ethnic hatred. The perpetrator who killed the three Armenian soldiers in a situation when there were no military activities was praised by the

Azerbaijani government and was posthumously given the title of national hero of Azerbaijan and had a street named after him.<sup>79</sup>

After the 44-day war of 2020, Azerbaijan awarded a medal to Kamil Zeynalli,<sup>80</sup> who was one of the organizers of attacks on Armenians in Moscow in July 2020. He called for the spilling of Armenian blood, claiming that “President [Aliyev] is with us [them],” saying “even if you're deported, you'll return as heroes.”<sup>81</sup> He is also believed to be one of those who beheaded an Armenian elder.<sup>82</sup>

The described cases of murders and glorification of murderers by the Azerbaijani authorities, instead of condemnation and prosecution, unquestionably details the fascist motivations and policies of the government.

Anti-Armenian propaganda as an instrument to suppress local democracy

For many years the Azerbaijani government has been using its anti-Armenian propaganda as a tool for repressions against its own pro-democracy dissidents and peace-building activists, as their work was continuously met by groundless accusations of having Armenian ancestry or being a part of a wider Armenian conspiracy against the Azerbaijani state. The ECRI Report on Azerbaijan from 2016 stated that “human rights activists working inter alia towards reconciliation with Armenia have been sentenced to heavy prison terms on controversial accusations.”<sup>83</sup> Along with suppressing freedoms or violating human rights, such measures naturally fuelled more and more Armenophobic sentiments inside Azerbaijan.

Akram Aylisli, a prominent writer and a member of the Union of Writers of Azerbaijan since the Soviet era has also been a target of a hostile campaign of intimidation. He wrote a novel Stone Dreams at the end of the Soviet era, when the two countries engaged in armed conflict. The novel included a description of violence by ethnic Azeris against Armenians during the 1920s in Agulis, Nakhichevan, and Aylisli viewed the book as an appeal for friendship between the two nations. It was published in Friendship of Peoples - a Russian literary journal, in December 2012. On January 29 2013, officials from the Yeni Azerbaijan, Azerbaijan's ruling party, publicly called on Aylisli to withdraw the novel and ask for the nation's forgiveness.<sup>84</sup> On February 10 2013, the protesters in western Azerbaijan (Ganja) burned books by the novelist, calling him “a traitor of the Azerbaijani nation.”<sup>85</sup> Later it was reported that the wife and son of Arzu Geybullayeva, a prominent Azerbaijani blogger and journalist (awardee for 2014 Vaclav Havel Journalism Fellowship with Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty) has been subjected to a growing campaign of intimidation and labelled as “traitor” for expressing criticism against the Azerbaijani government, working in the field of conflict transformation and collaborating with Armenian newspapers and NGOs. In 2010, Arzu Geybullayeva joined a small non-for-profit organization, “Imagine” Center for Conflict Transformation that worked with youth from Armenia and Azerbaijan bringing them together for a dialogue retreat.<sup>87</sup> Geybullayeva started receiving death threats in 2014, when her work for “Agos”, a Turkish-Armenian newspaper based in Istanbul, resulted in an extensive online abuse campaign against her. The intimidation campaign started because she said, in an interview with Azerbaijani news site modern.az, that she was respected in the office where she worked and where many Armenians worked with her.<sup>88</sup>

Journalist Rauf Mirgadirov, who reported on political developments and key human rights issues in Azerbaijan and Turkey, was deported from Turkey in April 2014 and arrested in Azerbaijan on allegations of “espionage,” namely by providing Armenian intelligence services with the information collected, together with photographs and technical drawings, and by deliberately providing them with assistance, so that this information could be used against the Republic of Azerbaijan.<sup>89</sup> On December 28, 2014, a court in Baku sentenced him to six years imprisonment, which later was converted to a five-year suspended term. Rauf Mirgadirov's arrest was condemned by international organizations, such as the Human Rights Watch, Freedom House, Reporters Without Borders and others.<sup>90</sup>

Renowned Azerbaijani human rights defenders Leyla Yunus and her husband Arif Yunusov were arrested on July 30, 2014 and sentenced respectively to 8.5 and 7 years in jail on August 13, 2015.<sup>91</sup> L.Yunus is the director of the Institute of Peace and Democracy (IPD), an organization promoting the rule of law which is involved in conflict resolution and peace-building between Azerbaijan and Armenia. A.Yunusov is the head of the Conflictology Department of IPD and has been informing people about the conflict over Nagorno-Karabakh linking it also to the patriotic education that holds a significant place in the Azerbaijani textbooks and comes from the doctrine of “fighting the enemies”. The court, however, never explained the basis for the charges and the punishments ranging from heavy fines to life in prison.<sup>93</sup> Both human rights defenders had serious health conditions and were released in November-December 2015 from jail and their prison terms were replaced with suspended sentences of five years.<sup>94</sup>

Terror against foreign citizens as an instrument to isolate Artsakh

Azerbaijan’s policy of hatred against Armenians is also extended towards visitors to the territory of Artsakh or expressing such an intention. Particularly, Azerbaijan condemns any visit by foreign citizens to Artsakh and the surrounding territories as well as to the former Azerbaijani enclaves now inside Armenia’s territory unless a visa or an official warrant is issued by Azerbaijani authorities. Azerbaijan considers entering these territories through Armenia a violation of its visa and migration policy and as a punishment permanently bans these individuals from entering Azerbaijan. The list of persona non grata was first released by the Azerbaijani MFA in 2013 based merely on the fact of a visit to Nagorno-Karabakh, and since has been repeatedly updated, currently counting about 130 people.<sup>95</sup> European officials, including members of EU Parliament, researchers, journalists among others were also added to Baku’s ‘black list’ over their visits to Nagorno-Karabakh.<sup>96</sup> A recent addition is the head of the HALO Trust de-mining program in Artsakh.<sup>97</sup>

Besides being officially banned through the ‘black lists’, there are cases when foreign citizens are threatened in order to be prevented from travelling to Artsakh or from covering stories from their trips. E.g. Sascha Dürkop, an employee at the Confederation of Independent Football Associations was threatened by the Embassy of Azerbaijan in Berlin before and after his visit to Nagorno-Karabakh. Threats were sent to his wife from an employee at the Azerbaijan UN

Alexander Lapshin, a Russian-Israeli travel-blogger and journalist has been declared wanted by Azerbaijan due to a tourist visit to Artsakh. There have been several attempts to kidnap him in different locations throughout the globe. Eventually, he was arrested in Minsk by Belarussian authorities and extradited to Baku, where he was imprisoned. His case has evolved into an international scandal encompassing five states, including Russia and Israel, hence Azerbaijan was forced to free him. He applied to the ECtHR accusing Azerbaijan of attempted murder, torture and illegal imprisonment. On December 15 2018, the Court notified that it had begun communication with the Azerbaijani authorities, having decided that the evidence presented about his attempted murder in a Baku prison and the infliction of grievous bodily harm and torture was enough to initiate proceedings against Azerbaijan.<sup>99</sup>

Additionally, Azerbaijan restricts the entrance into the country of people having Armenian ethnic backgrounds or that are somehow related to Armenians. More notably, in 2008, the Azerbaijani authorities refused to allow Armenian soccer players to travel to Baku for the qualifying matches between Armenia and Azerbaijan, despite the fact that their Armenian colleagues stated their readiness to secure Azerbaijani team's visit to Yerevan.<sup>100</sup>

In May 2019, at UEFA's Europa League final to be held in Baku, Arsenal Football Club decided not to include its player of Armenian origin – Henrikh Mkhitaryan as Armenians were not allowed to enter Azerbaijan. Meanwhile, the fans of Arsenal wearing T-shirts "Mkhitaryan #7" were being stopped and checked by the local police.<sup>101</sup>

Erasing traces of Armenian culture

Armenophobic policies of Azerbaijan ran in parallel with its attempts to erase the traces of indigenous Armenian culture hence proving the genuine goal of removing Armenians from the region. Azerbaijan is actively engaged in historical revisionism and is using three major methods - destroying the cultural heritage of indigenous Armenians, vandalizing the historical monuments and/or appropriating the heritage to other people from the region.

Artsakh hosts vital immovable historical and cultural monuments, including important archaeological resources, of which 1,456 items were left under Azerbaijani control, including about 161 churches and monasteries, 591 khachkars (cross-stones), 345 valuable tombstones, 108 cemeteries and sacral sights, 43 fortresses and palaces, and 208 other types of monuments.<sup>102</sup>

Armenians recognize these places as important relics of their ancient heritage and are concerned that they will be destroyed, vandalised or misused. Such concerns are not unfounded as Azerbaijan has a track record of engaging in this kind of activity before, whereas the related facts are described below.

During the war Azerbaijani armed forces deliberately shelled St. Holy Saviour Ghazanchetsots Cathedral in Shushi<sup>103</sup> - a masterpiece of 19th century Armenian architecture, spiritual and cultural center of Artsakh. After the war they assaulted Kanach Zham (Green Church) - whereby its dome and the bell tower were destroyed.<sup>104</sup>

Following the declaration of the armistice signed on November 10 2020, Azerbaijanis entered Shushi city and desecrated the Cathedral of Ghazanchetsots with graffiti on the external and internal walls of the Cathedral.<sup>105</sup> Other damaged monuments in the post war period include the Holy Mother of God church in Jabrail region,<sup>106</sup> monuments devoted to the victims of the Great Patriotic War in the village Avetaranots, Askeran district of NKAO<sup>107</sup> and Talish, Mardakert district of NKAO,<sup>108</sup> the Armenian cross-stone in the village of Arakel, Hadrut district of Artsakh.<sup>109</sup> There are a number of videos showing aggression towards and vandalism at the Armenian cemeteries in the occupied territories of Armenian settlements.<sup>110</sup>

Following the collapse of Soviet Union, Azerbaijan has destroyed 89 medieval Armenian churches, 5,840 intricately carved cross-stones called khachkars, and 22,000 tombstones in Nakhichevan/Nakhchivan, another enclave separated by Bolsheviks from Armenia and transferred to Azerbaijan in 1920s. The famous cemetery of cross-stones in Jugha/Julfa - the hometown of prosperous Armenian merchants in Medieval Ages, was pulverized with bulldozers, heavy hammers and pickaxes.<sup>111</sup>

As for appropriation of the monuments, such practices started mostly in the late Soviet period, as Azerbaijan suddenly began to claim that many Armenian/Christian historical monuments in fact belong to Caucasian Albanians previously living on the territory of Azerbaijan, and consequently - are Azerbaijani. Meanwhile, it is noteworthy that Azerbaijan's repressive policies towards its minorities have almost eradicated the Christian Udi people - the actual descendants of Caucasian Albanians - living along the coast of the Caspian Sea, in the territory extending to the Kura River in the north. Their numbers used to be more than 50,000 in 19th century,<sup>112</sup> but dwindled to 6,125 in 1989,<sup>113</sup> 4,200 in early 2000s<sup>114</sup> and 3,800 in 2018.<sup>115</sup>

There is evidence that under the name of Caucasus Albanian/Udi heritage Azerbaijan removed Armenian traces, such as the inscriptions on the tympanum and on tombstones outside the St. Eliasaeus church in Nij (Gabala) built in 1823<sup>116</sup> and erased Armenian letters in the Virgin Mary church in Nij (Gabala) built in the early 1890s.<sup>117</sup>

During the recent war, on October 19 2020, Azerbaijan's First Deputy Minister of Culture Anar Karimov stated that among other things, the war also aims at liberating "a huge number of cultural and historical monuments from the occupation of the Armenian Armed Forces,"<sup>118</sup> making it an overt statement of the intended efforts of reassignment of the cultural meaning of some monuments to Azerbaijan.<sup>119</sup> On November 11, 2020, Karimov tweeted that Khudavang (the Armenian monastery of Dadivank on the territory transferred to Azerbaijan, close to the NKAO border) is "one of the best testimonies of ancient Caucasian Albanian civilization."<sup>120</sup> It is worth mentioning that the same monastery laid in ruins and served as a farmhouse before the Armenians restored it after the war of 1990s. These cases also prove that the appropriation strategy is quite recent in Azerbaijan.

In 2016, IRS Publishing House, financially supported by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism of the Republic of Azerbaijan, published an illustrated online book, Karabakh Over the Centuries, where all historical references to the Armenian presence in Karabakh are erased. The only mention of Armenians is a chapter on the Armenian "aggression" in the first Karabakh War, while medieval Armenian churches are identified as Albanian churches.<sup>121</sup>

Since the armistice of November 10, 2020, the Ministry of Education, Science, Culture and Sports of the Republic of Artsakh has made efforts to remove from occupied Shushi the collections of the city's three museums, including about 200 monuments of the Museum of History of Shushi, nearly 800 paintings, graphic works and sculptures of the Museum of Fine

Another museum that had not dislocated its collections from the occupied lands was Hadrut's Museum of Homeland Studies named after Artur Mkrtchyan. On February 22, 2021, Armenian Public Radio published the evidence of the museum being vandalized.<sup>123</sup>

UNESCO has made a proposal to organize a mission to Artsakh to create an inventory of significant cultural properties so that they can be protected following the conflict. The mission can take place only with the agreement of both Armenia and Azerbaijan, however so far Azerbaijan has failed to respond to the request.<sup>124</sup>

War crimes

During the war, the hatred and calls for violence against Armenians obviously reached a peak in the Azerbaijani and Turkish mass media and social networks. The methods and means employed by the Azerbaijani armed forces against the civilian population of Artsakh demonstrated the intention of ethnic cleansing.

As mentioned above, Azerbaijan attacked Artsakh in close cooperation and under the military leadership of Turkey, that holds the second largest standing military force in NATO. Azerbaijan/Turkey used cluster munitions and UAVs (including killer drones), systematically and indiscriminately shelling peaceful settlements and civilian infrastructures, schools and hospitals, including a maternity ward, shelled places of worship and cultural monuments of Artsakh, particularly the spiritual center St. Ghazanchetots in Shushi.

Regular strikes on populated areas created an atmosphere of terror and constant fears among the civilian population causing significant psychological harm particularly to the children hiding in the bomb-shelters for several weeks.

Azerbaijan/Turkey applied white phosphorus weapons, prohibited by the Geneva Conventions, burning old-growth forests adjacent to human settlements<sup>125</sup> that served as a shelter for evacuees from the strikes of villages. On November 2, 2020, the head of the Nngi community in Martuni region said that the community-owned forests of more than 150 hectares have been burning for three days.<sup>126</sup> According to the Human Rights Ombudsman of Artsakh, by that day already 1,815 hectares of forests were burnt.<sup>127</sup> Dozens of people died or were seriously injured by the chemical weapons that were applied up until the ceasefire.<sup>128</sup>

Turkish controlled mercenaries, on the top of their monthly payments, were also promised extra remuneration for beheading Armenians. A Syrian mercenary, captured by the Artsakh Defence Army, testified that he was promised 2,000USD per month for fighting in Artsakh and 100USD as a “reward” for beheading a “kaffir” (unbeliever, in this case implying a non-Muslim).<sup>129</sup>

More than 120 Armenian soldiers and civilians (at least two women) were held as POWs, some subjected to physical abuse and humiliation.<sup>130</sup> Azerbaijani authorities are hiding the real number of captives.<sup>131</sup> At least 62 Armenians were taken after the armistice of November 10, in a peace setting under the peacekeepers’ presence in the area, and declared as terrorists, being refused the right-of-return, with the intention of trying them in Azerbaijan on criminal charges.<sup>132</sup>

Visual demonstrations of atrocities, mutilation of bodies of fallen Armenian soldiers and dehumanization of Armenian POWs were widely and proudly circulated on Azerbaijani social media.<sup>133</sup>

Azerbaijan grossly violated the post-war agreement and humanitarian processes and the international human rights standards with an obvious aim of terrorizing and torturing Armenians both in Artsakh and Armenia, and demanding them to withdraw their self-determination claims.<sup>134</sup>

There have been a number of atrocities committed against the civilian population by the Azerbaijani armed forces that vividly demonstrate the quality of attitude of the Azerbaijani people, fuelled and supported by the hatred and official anti-Armenian policy, obviously aimed at the intimidation of people and ethnic cleansing. Some examples are below described:

- On October 10, 2020, members of a subversive group that invaded Hadrut town killed at least four civilians. Among them was a person with a disability and his elderly mother,<sup>135</sup> who were shot to death in cold blood in their house. The pictures of the dead body of the disabled person revealed signs of violence on his body - his chest and abdomen. His left hand palm was shot by a gun, supposedly raised to show he was unarmed at his home.<sup>136</sup>
- On October 15, 2020, two video clips were circulated on social media showing how two Armenian men surrendered to the Azerbaijani armed forces in Hadrut town, but who were subsequently humiliated and executed.<sup>137</sup> Prior to being executed both men - 73-year-old Benik Hakobyan and 25-year-old Yuri Adamyanyan - were wrapped in the flags of the Republic of Armenia and Artsakh, respectively.<sup>138</sup>
- On October 18, 2020, the Human Rights Defender of the Republic of Armenia publicized information that he had received a complaint regarding the beheading of an Armenian soldier by an Azerbaijani military officer.<sup>139</sup> According to the information, on October 16, 2020, a member of the Azerbaijani armed forces called to the brother of the Armenian soldier in question and told that his brother was under their control, that they beheaded him and were going to post his photo on the social network. This was done to cause suffering to the family members. Several hours later, the brother found the photo of his killed brother on the latter's social media page.<sup>140</sup> Other instances of beheading of Artsakh Defence Army soldiers were revealed in social media as well.<sup>141</sup>

- On October 22, 2020, the Azerbaijani media channel “Kanal 1” published a video showing eight persons in the uniform of the Artsakh Defence Army being ordered to say “Karabakh-Azerbaijan” by the military officers of Azerbaijani armed forces. One of them was standing bent down with evident signs of being in pain.<sup>142</sup> In another video published by Azerbaijani social media users, a group of Armenian soldiers were ordered to sit on their knees, with hands behind their heads and loudly pronounce “Karabakh-Azerbaijan”.
- On October 22, 2022, footage revealed in social media showed a soldier of the Artsakh Defence Army in the hands of Azerbaijani officers being kicked in the head and ordered to curse the Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan aiming to humiliate the leader of the country and the person in question. The video clearly showed that the soldier was in a painful and stressful condition.<sup>143</sup>
- On October 28, 2020, Azerbaijan launched heavy rocket strikes towards the Medical Center, the Main Hospital and the maternity ward of Stepanakert, located at the center of the capital city of Artsakh. Whereas there were no military objects nearby the intent of the strikes was to kill civilians in the mentioned locations.<sup>144</sup> Other incidents of hitting the hospitals in Artsakh have been documented by Human Rights Watch.<sup>145</sup>
- On October 29, 2020, there was a report on social media about three elderly neighbours in Togh village, who decided not to flee. As Azerbaijanis captured the village, one of them watched as they executed her two friends, beheading one and shooting the other. She escaped with the clothes she wore to Stepanakert.<sup>146</sup>
- On October 29, 2020, a civilian captive, an 85-year-old Yevgenia Babayan was transferred to Armenia.<sup>147</sup> In her testimony about instances of ill-treatment under the control of Azerbaijani authorities the captive woman stated that there were two civilians of Armenian origin in the police department and was later told, by the policemen, that they too were executed.<sup>148</sup>
- On October 30, 2020, another person, an 84-year-old man, Misha Melkumyan, was reported dead while under the control of Azerbaijani authorities, the death having resulted from brain trauma.<sup>149</sup>
- On October 30, 2020, another video with an alleged deliberate killing of prisoners-of-war of the Artsakh Defence Army appeared on social media. The footage showed at least 19 bodies of servicemen of the Artsakh Defence Army with some handcuffed and

Armenian prisoners of war and civilians in Azerbaijan<sup>158</sup> increase the concern and anxiety of the families as the whereabouts and possible return of their relatives remain in question.

These concerns are also based on the documented record of Azerbaijani authorities of the ill-treatment and killing of Armenian prisoners of war and civilians in the past.<sup>159</sup> Those concerns grow due to the intensification of the hatred policy of Azerbaijan even after the armistice, particularly demonstrated by inflammatory speeches at the highest level.

Preparation for war and the crime of aggression

In parallel to negotiations aimed at a peaceful solution of the conflict, Azerbaijan has spent the last decade accumulating arms and heavily investing in its military with the intention of taking over the region by war.

Azerbaijan apparently views the conflict as a dispute over its own 'belongings,' so finds the only solution to be the return of the territory to the 'owner' by all means.<sup>160</sup> Determination to resolve the issue through military force is evident from multiple speeches of Aliyev and some other key officials. A few of the quotes starting from 2007 are presented below:

On June 22 2007, the Azerbaijani President said "Azerbaijan must attack Armenia in all directions. The attack must be political, economic and diplomatic." He stated "Nagorno-Karabakh will never join Armenia and will never be independent"... Noting the necessity of creation of a military-industrial multiplex, Aliyev said that in the end of the year Azerbaijan will launch its first military output. "War is not over and Azerbaijan will strengthen its army," he said, reminding that his country's military budget is equal to Armenia's state budget.<sup>161</sup>

On April 23 2010, President Aliyev said "It is no secret that along with other spheres Azerbaijan places a particular emphasis on its military. It is our only approach since Azerbaijan is at war. The war is not over. The first phase of war was just completed. We must do it so that we could liberate our lands by military means at any moment. Military spending has increased ten-fold over the past 5-6 years, defence industry is developing, military equipment has been bought because it is our natural right... Today, Azerbaijan`s army is stronger and more professional than Armenian army in all fields."<sup>162</sup>

On July 13, 2010, President Aliyev said at the opening address to his Cabinet "We took very important steps in the military industry in 2009. We've been strengthening our military potential. Recently we made changes to our budget, which now stands at $15bn. We allocated an additional $500m to military spending.... We have to focus, first and foremost, on strengthening the country's military potential, and this is what we are doing. Azerbaijan's military spending today is $2.15bn, which is more than the total budget of Armenia."... "Our military power can play a decisive role in the settlement of the Armenian-Azerbaijani conflict over Nagorno-Karabakh."... "We must be ready to liberate our occupied lands at any time. And I'm completely confident that Azerbaijan is capable of doing so today. We have considerably increased our military power...."<sup>163</sup>

On February 14, 2011, Azerbaijani Defence Minister Safar Abiyev told OSCE Minsk Group co-chairmen that his country is seriously preparing for war against Armenia to "liberate its territories from occupation."<sup>164</sup>

On June 4, 2011, Azerbaijani Defence ministry spokesman Eldar Sabiroglu stated that "Eventually, Azerbaijani soldiers will meet the expectations of the people, the government, and the supreme commander-in-chief and will liberate the occupied land from the enemy."<sup>165</sup>

On October 18, 2011, on the 20th anniversary of the restoration of state independence of the Republic of Azerbaijan, President Aliyev said "Our growing military spending is a natural process. All our expenses, including the military, are growing. Considering the fact that we have the Karabakh problem, an increase in our expenses is natural. If they did not increase, it would be unnatural. They are and will be growing. The task I set a few years ago is now in the past. I said that our military spending must equal Armenia's total budget. Today, our military spending is 500 million higher than the Armenian budget. In the future, the difference will further increase. One of the reasons for my optimism is the demographic situation in the region. The population of Azerbaijan is growing every year, we have over 9.1 million citizens. The population of Armenia is decreasing by the year, and will continue to reduce due to natural processes and because of the hopelessness, unemployment and mass apathy prevailing there. All these and other factors, needless to say, further strengthen our confidence. Most importantly, the people of Azerbaijan will never put up with this situation. The people of Azerbaijan will ensure the existence of Nagorno-Karabakh as an integral part of Azerbaijan."<sup>166</sup>

On January 10, 2014, President Aliyev said "Azerbaijan will never allow the establishment of the second fictitious Armenian state on its historical territory." He said "Our military power plays a crucial role in a just settlement of the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict in accordance with international standards."<sup>167</sup>

On August 7, 2014, the Twitter statement of President Aliyev read that "Our territorial integrity will be restored. There are several factors that enable this conclusion. Azerbaijan is getting stronger. We are not living in peace, we are living in a state of war. Everyone must know this. The war is not over. Only the first stage of it is. But the second stage may start too."<sup>168</sup>

On June 16 2017, Azerbaijan's Defence Minister Zakir Hasanov made a speech before the graduates of the Azerbaijan Higher Military School, saying: "The only task of the army is to be ready for war and ensure the territorial integrity by liberating the occupied lands."<sup>169</sup>

On June 26, 2018, President Aliyev said "The war has not ended yet, only the first stage of war is over."<sup>170</sup>

Obviously, the society in Azerbaijan has been prepared for war for many years. Not surprisingly, after the clashes on the northern borders of Armenia in mid-July 2020, there have been massive demonstrations in Baku demanding the Azerbaijani government go to war with Armenia.<sup>171</sup>

Recent terror rhetoric and actions

It should be noted that after the 44-day war of 2020 Aliyev's rhetoric became much more arrogant, humiliating and threatening, indicating his true sentiments towards Armenians.

On January 6, 2021, in a video-conference Aliyev summarized the results of 2020, where he used expressions threatening the entire Armenian people and insulting their dignity.<sup>172</sup> His speech also implied an intent of further isolating Artsakh, which according to the Human Rights Ombudsman of the Republic of Artsakh is in violation of the internationally recognized principle that no one should be left behind and no human right ignored, regardless of the political status

- "We stopped when Armenia acknowledged its humiliating defeat, fell to its knees, threw in the towel and surrendered."
- "I have just been informed that the Armenian foreign minister has gone to Khankendi [Stepanakert]. What in the world are you doing there? Let them not forget the war. Let them remember that the iron fist is still there. These visits must stop. We warn them that if such provocative steps continue to be taken, Armenia will regret it even more ... Armenian foreign minister, who are you to go there? We warn you. If a similar step is repeated, our response will be very harsh".
- "Pro-Armenian forces, those who took part in ugly deeds against us during the war, those who want to take away our victory, those who support the Armenians are the supporters of the anti-national council and they are fugitives, traitors, enemies. It should be included in high school and university textbooks".
- "Today, we have the task of solidifying this victory politically, preventing the rise of Armenian fascism..."<sup>174</sup>

Besides pure rhetoric, Aliyev strategically and persistently moves policies and promotes actions to terrorize and generate fear among the Armenian people.

On December 7, 2020, Armenia's Minister of Foreign Affairs at a meeting with his Russian counterpart Sergei Lavrov mentioned that there are no significant signs of Turkey making any effort to withdraw the foreign terrorists from around Artsakh. He said, "Quite the contrary, there are confirmed reports that Azerbaijan is planning to expand the geography of spreading armed terrorists and mercenaries and populate the occupied regions of Artsakh with them."<sup>175</sup>

As mentioned by the chairman of Turkey's Nationalist Movement Party Devlet Bahçeli, there is a plan to establish a school in Shushi by Ulku Ocaklari Education and Culture Foundation, which is the official name of "Grey Wolves", internationally recognized as a terrorist neo-fascist organization and recently banned in France.<sup>176</sup> According to the representative of the International Christian Concern (ICC) "the opening of a Grey Wolf school in Shushi further proves that this war has had strong ideological foundations from its start."<sup>177</sup>

Turkey and Russia established a joint monitoring center in Aghdam, towards the eastern border of Artsakh. There is not much official information about the purpose of the center, but it seems to be as a base for surveillance drones to monitor the new ceasefire lines between Armenian and Azerbaijani forces, implying also that the drones - the major devices that 'won' the war and devastated Artsakh - now will be regularly be flying over its sky.<sup>178</sup>

The mentioned instances of the presence of jihadist terrorists in the neighbourhood and surveillance by Turkish drones spread threats and intimidation among the Armenian population and are obviously intended to wipe them from the area in the future, even without any further military intervention.

It should be noted that according to the tri-partite statement of Russia, Azerbaijan and Armenia on the armistice, the peacekeeping forces of Russia will stay in the region for 5 years with a possibility of automatic extension unless either of parties expresses an "intent of suspension", provided 6 months in advance.<sup>179</sup> People of Artsakh are seriously concerned that the peacekeepers will leave the area upon the demand of Azerbaijan before the conflict is resolved diplomatically and Armenians will be left alone faced with the existential threats caused by hatred and ethnic cleansing intentions of the Azerbaijani government.

Ethnic cleansing triggered by Turkey

Heydar Aliyev, former president of Azerbaijan and the father of current President Ilham Aliyev has once described Azerbaijan and Turkey as "One nation, two states." Both countries share a Turkic culture and populations.<sup>180</sup>

The ethnic cleansing of Armenians in Artsakh by local Turks has been directly or indirectly supported and promoted by Turkey since the beginning of 20th century. Turkey has been an active player both in early 1920s in the negotiations with Bolsheviks to divide parts of Armenia, annexing those to Azerbaijan and its autonomous Nakhichevan republic, squeezing the territories of both Armenia and Artsakh inside Turkish/Azerbaijani borders. As known, Turkey itself was the organizer and the denier of genocide of its Christian minorities - 1.5 million Armenians as well as of hundreds of thousands of Greeks and Assyrians - in the Ottoman Empire in 19-20th centuries.

Despite recognizing the independence of Armenia after the collapse of Soviet Union, in 1993, in reaction to Armenian victories during the first Artsakh war, Turkey unilaterally froze all its relations with Armenia putting the latter into an economic blockade and actually putting at risk its future development.

Under the leadership of President Recep Tayyip Erdogan, Turkey's policies have become more nationalistic and antagonistic towards its neighbours with vivid signs of racism and expansionism.

On 4 May, 2020, President Erdogan used the term "kılıç artığı" (in Turkish - "leftovers of the sword") referring to survivors of the genocide in the Ottoman Empire. He specifically said that "We do not allow terrorist leftovers of the sword in our country [Turkey] to attempt to carry out [terrorist] activities. Their number has decreased a lot but they still exist."<sup>181</sup>

In July 2020, Turkish president, Recep Tayyip Erdogan stated that they were going "to continue to fulfil the mission of their grandfathers, which was carried out a century ago in the Caucasus,"<sup>182</sup> which was an explicit threat of continuing the Armenian Genocide.

In the 44-day war Turkey helped Azerbaijan through the provision of weapons (including Bayraktar killer drones) and assistance by its high-ranking military personnel. Turkey also recruited mercenaries (including jihadists) from Syria and employed them in the region – promising them 1,000-2,000USD as monthly salaries and additional 100USD - for each beheaded Armenian.<sup>183</sup>

The president of Christian Solidarity International has signalled that the conflict between Azerbaijan and Armenia represents a genocide against Armenian Christians, referring particularly to the fact that Azerbaijan was aided by the Turkish military and the former ISIS fighters from Syria recruited by Turkey as mercenaries against Armenia.<sup>184</sup>

Obviously, the violence and hatred have not remained contained within Azerbaijan and Turkey, but also have spread throughout other continents, where there are concentrations of Armenian and Azerbaijani diaspora. On October 29, 2020, videos appeared, reportedly of Azeris and Turks in Istanbul, Turkey as well as in Lyon and Vienna, France, marching aggressively in the streets and looking for Armenians.<sup>185</sup>

International Christian Concern has observed that the conflict in Artsakh also fuelled anti-Armenian hatred throughout Turkey towards the indigenous Armenian population as well as Turkish-influenced areas of Syria. E.g., in Istanbul, a demonstration convoy encircled the former Agos offices and the Memorial Site of Hrant Dink, a Turkish-Armenian editor of Agos assassinated in 2007. The mayor of Akçakale in Turkey (shares a border with Syria's Tal Abyad, a historically Armenian area) distributed Azerbaijani flags to shopkeepers and citizens, asking them to stand "against the Armenian persecution." A grenade was thrown at the Armenian Church in Hasakah in Syria.<sup>186</sup>

On December 10, 2021, Erdogan participated in the military parade in Baku, where he glorified the organizers and perpetrators of the Armenian Genocide during the times of the Ottoman Empire and the mass atrocities against Armenians committed in Baku in September 1918.<sup>187</sup> "Today, may the souls of Nuri Pasha, Enver Pasha, and the brave soldiers of the Caucasus Islam Army, be happy" he said.<sup>188</sup> He said "The fact that Azerbaijan saved their territory from occupation does not mean that the struggle is over. The struggle which has been carried out in political and military arenas so far will now continue in various different fronts."<sup>189</sup>

In response to Turkish President Erdogan's comments referring to the Armenian genocide of 20th century Azerbaijan's President Aliyev said "My brother said that Azerbaijan was right in this war! Turkey's political and moral support for Azerbaijan makes every Azerbaijani citizen proud and happy."

International Christian Concern claims "These two countries [Turkey and Azerbaijan] have pursued their actions in a way which elevates and echoes the 1915 genocide of ethnic Christians." The demonstrated "language and behaviour shows an intention of eliminating a community from their homes simply because of an identity they were born into. It has caused serious bodily harm, mental harm, and even death to those residents. As such, it should trigger international concern that a genocide has and is taking place within Karabakh toward ethnic Christians. Given Turkey's role as a conflict instigator and now as a peacekeeper following the truce agreement, there is also concern about the current system monitoring Karabakh and whether it will truly encourage diversity.<sup>190</sup>

There is evidence that signals a new wave of anti-Armenian sentiments in Turkey. The Turkish Hrant Dink Foundation showed that Armenians were the most targeted group in hate speech in Turkish media in 2019 – much of it related to the Genocide.<sup>191</sup> Additionally, there are efforts by the government to destroy the Armenian heritage in Turkey, such as putting on sale or demolishing churches.<sup>192</sup>

Given the openly voiced brotherhood between Turkey and Azerbaijan, their joint actions in war against Artsakh, Erdogan's increasingly vivid fascist dispositions and expansionist intentions, serious consideration should be made to the statements coming from Turkey that might further reveal the ultimate aims behind Azerbaijan's Armenophobic policies.<sup>193</sup> Concerns about the Azerbaijani and Turkish anti-Armenian xenophobia and aggression and the imminent genocidal threat have also been raised by about 80 academic scholars all over the world.<sup>194</sup>

Conclusion and recommendations

Throughout the 20th and 21st centuries different governance regimes in Azerbaijan have systematically tried to remove indigenous Armenians from the region applying a variety of policies and tactics, such as discrimination and humiliation, pogroms and massacres, veneration of murderers and terrorizing people, falsifying the history and erasing the cultural traces.

There is a strong belief that the Armenian people of Artsakh are targeted because of their ethnic background as well as for their determination to independently organize the political life of their community. The systemic nature of the tactics used against them proves Azerbaijan's purpose to wipe out the indigenous Armenian population from the region to strengthen Azerbaijan's rights for the land. The Turkish-Azerbaijani alliance particularly exacerbates the existential threats for Armenians of Artsakh.

Unless there is an effective and bold intervention of the international community that adheres to the respect of human rights and democratic values, Armenian people of Artsakh will be continuously faced with threats of ethnic cleansing.

Hereby, the authors of this report appeal to the international organizations, including the UN and its institutions, particularly the Secretary General, UN Human Rights Council, UN Security Council, UN Office on Genocide Prevention and the Responsibility to Protect, UN Special Adviser of the Secretary-General on the Prevention of Genocide, Committee of the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, UN Special Rapporteurs and Working Groups on human rights, the Council of Europe and its institutions, particularly the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, the Council of Europe Advisory Committee on the Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities, the European Commission against Racism and Intolerance, NATO, OSCE and particularly the OSCE Minsk Group, in accordance with their respective mandates:

1. To urge the Azerbaijani authorities to discontinue any action that puts the life and well-being of POWs and civilian captives under imminent risk and to immediately return them to Armenia and Artsakh;
2. To investigate the racism and Armenophobia in Azerbaijan and war crimes driven by their ethnic cleansing intents, such as the systematic shelling of human settlements, hospitals and schools, destroying places of worship and cultural monuments, use of chemical weapons, engagement of mercenaries tasked with beheading, torture and degrading treatment of Armenians, humiliation of POWs and captives, mutilation of bodies of fallen soldiers, refusal of returning POWs, etc.;
3. To investigate the current state of education in Azerbaijan to devise measures for preventing the hate education in educational establishments of the country;
4. To put an end to impunity for inflammatory language and hate crimes against Armenians through promoting criminalization of incitement to hatred and violence on ground of racism, xenophobia and ethnic origin, including through internet, and to establish for effective investigation of such acts, including by high-ranking politicians and human rights defenders;
5. To appeal to Russia and Turkey to remove the joint monitoring center in the neighbourhood of Artsakh or to ban the flow of their air vehicles over the sky of Artsakh, as well as to prevent other controversial projects initiated by Azerbaijan, such as the plans of settlement of jihadists in the neighborhood of NKAO or establishment of a school of "Grey Wolves" in Shushi;
6. To ensure deployment of additional international peace-keeping troops from neutral OSCE member countries - with clearly defined mission and rules of operation, on the border of NKAO and transportation corridors to ensure the safety and protection of Artsakh people as well as visitors to Artsakh;
7. To put efforts to stop the isolation of Artsakh and ensure accessibility for all, without restrictions to actors providing humanitarian assistance and reporting on violations of international humanitarian law and human rights, including international governmental and non-governmental organizations, diplomatic missions, development projects as well as international journalists and visitors, in order to put in action the UN principle of 'leaving no one behind'.

International organizations shall engage effectively to ensure long-term and sustainable resolution to the problem of Artsakh (Nagorno-Karabagh) with acknowledgement of the existential threats to its indigenous Armenian population and of the need for security guarantees under international monitoring mechanisms. De-occupation of NKAO and assurance of a safe geographic zone for proper communication between Armenia and Artsakh shall be guaranteed in order to prevent the risks associated with Armenophobia in Azerbaijan.
